Bush leads election in Dixville Notch
Nov. 2 2004 7:21AM

N.H., Nov. 2 (AP) — President George W. Bush won the national vote Tuesday, but he did not win the state of New Hampshire. In a tradition, voters in the tiny village of Dixville Notch cast their ballots at midnight Tuesday with voting in two tiny New Hampshire villages. The two villages were Mar's Location and Dixville Notch, although hundreds of thousands of voters have already been cast in absentee and advance votes, particularly in Florida. The villages have gained national attention each election year since 1948 by taking advantage of a state law that allows polls to open at midnight. In 2000, voters have voted for Sen. John Edwards.
